Answers Every Call

Norway People Have Found That This Is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench, a little cause may hurt the kidneys. Spells of backache often follow. Or some irregularity of the urine. A certain remedy for such attacks, a medicine that answers every call, is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific. Many Norway people rely on it. Here is Norway proof.

S. C. Foster, Main St., Norway, Me., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am able to speak highly in their favor. Several years ago my kidneys began to trouble me and learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box. It was not long after commencing their use that I felt much better. I was free from kidney trouble until recently when a cold brought on another attack. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store and after taking a few doses, I was relieved of every symptom of the trouble. Whenever I have taken this remedy it has never failed to help me and I therefore speak highly in its favor when an opportunity occurs." 18-19

Jersey Breeders' Meet.

The Oxford and Cumberland Counties Jersey Breeders' Association met at the farm of Charles W. Farrington, Fryeburg Center, on Wednesday, April 27.

The forenoon was spent in an informal discussion of feeding stuffs and feeding a cold meat dinner was served at noon.

Promptly at 12:30 p. m., President H. W. Evans called the meeting to order in the parlor of Mr. Farrington's comfortable house, and the routine of the day was attended to. H. B. Eastman was accepted to membership.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Shaw sent a paper on "The St. Lambert Family of Jerseys," which was read. This excellent paper briefly discussed the important historical evidence of the early days and treatment some prominent animals received.

Some dairy problems were ably discussed by B. Walker McKee, Lecturer of the State Grange. Mr. McKee spoke of the opportunities for live stock breeding in Maine, of the assistance of local associations, and of the work of the Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture. He showed the value and need of study on the farm, and pointed out the good results obtained by men who put much thought in their dairying.

The meeting was adjourned to the yard where Assistant Dairy Instructor Redman discussed the American Jersey Cattle Club score card and then scored three cows and a bull.

The next meeting will be held at South Waterford, August 17.

The Lumber Camp.

It is unwritten law among the remote lumber camps of the northern Maine woods to leave all doors on the latch, and to have on perpetual deposit some fragments of food, such as a tin of soda biscuit and a canister of tea on a shelf, a cube of salt pork lying among the bottom of the barrel and sugar, pepper, salt and other necessities to equip a hungry man for a good meal.

To find an ancient camp in its full glory of beauty and song, one should visit it in the middle of June, when barn swallows are breeding against the rafters and white-crowned sparrows and robins are caring for their young in niches under projecting overhangs, when squirrels and mice are darting among the corners, and woodpeckers and several species of boring worms are making day and night noise in converting sap-dozed logs into sawdust.

Some Maxims of Mark Twain.

They are Full of Homely Wit, and of Deep

Wisdom.

"Noise proves nothing. Often a hen who has merely laid an egg cackles as if she had laid an asteroid."

"Training is everything. The peach was once a bitter almond; cauliflower is nothing but a cabbage with a college education."

"The Autocrat of Russia possesses more power than any other man on the earth; but he cannot stop a sneeze."

"Habit is habit, and not to be flung out of the window by any man, but coaxed down stairs a step at a time."

"One of the most striking differences between a cat and a life is that a cat has only nine lives."

"When I reflect upon the number of disagreeable people who I know have gone to a better world, I am moved to lead a different life."

"The true Southern watermelon is a boon apart, and not to be mentioned with commoner things. It is chief of God over all the fruits of the earth. When one has tasted it, he knows that the angels eat. It was not a Southern watermelon that Eve took; we know it because she repented."

"Be good and you will be lonesome."

"Fool things are harder to put up with than the annoyance of a good example."

"It were not best that we should all think alike; it is difference of opinion that makes horse-races."

"Even the clearest of most perfect circumstances is likely to be at fault, after all, and therefore ought to be received with great caution. Take the case of any pencil sharpened by any woman; if you have witnesses, you will find she did it with a knife; but if you take simply the aspect of the pencil, you will say she did it with her teeth."

"April 1. This is the day upon which we are reminded of what we are on the other three hundred and sixty-four."

"The English are mentioned in the bible; Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth."

"Adam and Eve had many adventures, but the principal one was, that they escaped teething."

"There is little trouble about special providences; namely, there is so often a doubt as to which party was intended to be the beneficiary. In the case of the children, the bears and the prophet, the bears got more real satisfaction out of the episode than the prophet did, because they got the children."

"There is no character, however good and fine, but it can be destroyed by ridicule, however poor and witless. Observe the ass, for instance; his character is about perfect; he is the choicest spirit among all the humbler animals, yet see what ridicule has brought him to. Instead of feeling complimented when we are called an ass, we are left in doubt."

"Consider well the proportions of things. It is better to be a young June-bug than an old bird of paradise."

"Why is it that we rejoice at a birth and grieve at a funeral? It is because we are not the person involved."

"All say, 'How hard it is that we have died—a strange compliment to come from the mouths of people who have to live.'"

"It is easy to find fault, if one has that disposition. There was once a man who, not being able to find any other fault with his coal, complained that there were too many prehistoric toads in it."

"When angry, count four; when very angry, swear."

"The holy passion of friendship is of so sweet and steady and loyal and enduring a nature that it will last through a life-time, if not asked to lend money."

"Classic." A book which people praise and don't read."

"The man with a new idea is a crank until the idea succeeds."

"Truth is stranger than fiction, but it is because fiction is obliged to stick to possibilities; truth isn't."

Creoles.

I have used the word "Creole." To the average Englishman I imagine it conjures up visions of a dark and beautiful woman gloriously appareled and with a large proportion of colored blood in her veins. It is necessary to get this idea out of one's head at the very beginning, as it is a wholly mistaken one.

The first and essential claim to the title of Creole is one that should be of purest European blood; the second, so far as the West Indies are concerned, is that one should be a native of the islands.

If Queen Victoria had happened to be in Trinidad when her eldest son was born, King Edward would be a Creole. The word simply applies to two things—parents and birth. For many an English creole, a French creole, a Spanish creole; but you cannot be a creole if you are born in England or France or Spain, even though your ancestors had been born and bred in the West Indies for generations.

The one thing which is impossible in a true creole is exactly what the ignorant think the word implies—that is, the least suggestion of negro blood.

Please remember, then, that the true creoles are as white as you are, and that those of the upper classes have nearly all been educated in France or England; and that if you meet one in a London drawing-room and expect veils and nose rings and a jangle of barbaric jewels you will be grievously disappointed.

They are just ordinary ladies and gentlemen, a little paler than you because, living in the tropics, they have not been so much under the open sky—citizens also of the British Empire and loyal subjects of King Edward, although, sometimes they can only speak French or Spanish.—London Review.

M. F. Holman of Otisfield Gore has a small farm of 40 acres, of which are under cultivation. In 1907 he sold over $800 worth of apples, and other crops and profit from cows brought up the income to over $800. In 1909 he sold from orchard, cows and farm a little over $700 worth. Following is a list of some of the things sold:

The Teeth.

The cause of the loss of the teeth—Hereditary and prenatal influences have something to do with the durability of the teeth, as does the food of the child during the formative period of the temporary and permanent sets. But the exciting cause is chemical action due to faulty care of the mouth and teeth. Particles of food remaining on or between the teeth ferment and decompose and form acids. These acids, acting pretty continuously in badly-cared-for mouths dissolve the structure of the teeth, and after a while the nerve pulp is exposed, and then follows the full train of symptoms, pain, ulceration, abscesses, loss of teeth, etc.

For the want of care, the teeth may also be lost by the accumulation of tartar and the resulting inflammation of the gums and absorption of the sockets of the teeth. The teeth may also be injured by the use of foods which contain too much acid, or by injurious tooth preparations.
How to save the teeth.—From early childhood the habit should be formed of giving the teeth regular care. With a tooth-brush and water, and preferably tooth-powder the teeth should be cleaned carefully and thoroughly. Use a tooth-pick, a soft smooth one, only when it is necessary to remove particles which cannot otherwise be easily removed. Clean the teeth the last thing before bedtime, and again in the morning. Clean the mouth and teeth thoroughly after every meal if possible.

How to use the tooth-brush.—The brush with bristles of uneven length is best. Rinse the mouth first with water, then use the brush with water alone. A tooth-brush and water with no tooth-powder of any kind cannot wear well. (described later) only once or twice a day. Brush all the surfaces of the teeth, especially the backs of them and the spaces between them. In brushing the teeth the gums should not be avoided; moderate friction helps to keep them healthy. The kind of tooth-preparation to use.—There is reason to be shy of many on the market. Better ask your dentist, or be on the safe side and use nothing but some precipitated chalk or magnesia. This may be used as to be entirely without grit. This may or may not be favored with one or more of the aromatic oils, cinnamon, sassafras, peppermint or oil of wintergreen.

When to see the dentist.—Do not wait until filling, or extraction is necessary. Arrange with him to examine your teeth at least twice a year and advise you. It is better and cheaper for you to enlist his services in the prevention of trouble rather than to wait and give him the larger operations which will be harder for you and cost more.

Tonic of The Country Town.

He who has never called a country town his home has missed much. He who had his first look upon the world from some remote village which at the dawn of consciousness spelled all the world to him and held in its bounds all the people, will always lack something in his sense of his proper adjustment to the world. It is in them that the truest friendships are formed, the closest studies of human nature provided, the most lasting hold given on the eternal truths.
Only as a little child can the kingdom of earth as of that one of which it was first said. Go closer into the records of these boys off the farms and you will find that it was from the country towns, rather than the farms they came; that it was some country village that inspired the dreams, fired the hopes and prepared for that flight to broader fields. And they go back laden with gifts, not to the farms, but to the country towns to which they feel they owe so much.

Our Castles.

Many of us are building castles. Why will one seek to build a castle on another's handiwork? Perhaps it has been wrought with great care and precision; at least with good purpose, by the sweat of the brow, and with the best precision his light would permit.
The foundation was designed to be of firm rock and not the sinking sands of immorality and overmuch worldliness. His castle then, was wrought with care, why try to shake it down, I ask? Why shatter his ideals? Why ask upon what creed or dogma he is building so long as it is good and will stand the test? Or why ask what church he represents. Simply this:
"My fellow being is building himself a castle with what light and strength he has given him." We are working toward that goal where all deserving ones share alike. How can we help one another? So build broad and high, from cornerstone to turret and dome, that your work may be the proof of your faith and true Christianity.
"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul!"
Look to your own castle! behold how it is shaken while censuring another! How the wind makes it reel, even to its foundations.

Let alone another's work and build your own yet stronger and more beautiful, for it will not, as it is, stand the test of earthquake shocks, and the sweeping tornadoes.
Build over, on a stronger and surer basis. But beware! Except it be founded upon the true Rock, it cannot stand. And learn to-day what this Rock is, oh fellow mortals! ye who seek to build up of wood, hay, stubble, who upon fallow soil, unworked and strewn with the weeds of envy and unkindness, yielding bitter fruit, are expectant for the full fruition here and hereafter. Beware lest your castle crumble, and this, while trying to pull down another's, which was built with care and many tears, perchance, and founded upon the Rock of Ages. And you will not even return good for good, while you are given the Divine command to do good for evil, even.

How we not heard of the stiff-necked and rebellious, and that pride comes before a fall?
Then humble yourselves before the mighty hand of God, and be wise. Seek justice and truth.
"Giving none offense in anything that the ministry be not blamed."
"All who are in Christ," or "of the household of faith," should be a safe passport, and a passport to good company and good and pleasant living, socially.
And yet, you seek to destroy the peace of mind of your fellow beings by indifference, unkind rejections and injustices, which speak more plainly than words, neglecting even to use the words, "good as yourself," as you would be used.

You seek to rise, but you cannot, your castle totters and will some day lie crumbling and returning to dust beneath the feet—the shattered idol.
Then pause, you who would hurt another with unkind and envious deeds, lest you shatter your ideal castle, while trying to pull down another's, and like the unwise man, who built his house upon the sand, you behold it fall, and upon the great fall of it.
Have we not all and life's petty strife, Some pure ideal of a noble life That once seemed possible?
Did we not hear the flutter of its wings, and feel it near.
And just within our reach? It was, And yet we lost it in this daily jar and fret, And now live idle in a vague regret, Build our castles in the air, and it will wait, Ready for us to fill it soon or late, No star is ever lost we once have seen, We always may have what we might have been."
JENNIE E. SNOW KIMBALL.

Insect Notes.

The Maine Agricultural Experiment Station is now mailing Bulletin 177 containing accounts of insects which have proved more or less injurious in various parts of the state the past year. The Saddle prominent, a greenish Caterpillar so destructive to beech and other deciduous trees; the Brown tail moth, a serious and wide spread orchard and forest tree pest; the Gypsy Moth and the San Jose scale recently discovered residents in the State, the Spruce and Larch Sawflies, plant lice, flies, more quinine and as yet others are briefly discussed. Of the less widely known insects, the Spindle worm injurious to elder bushes and corn, the Birch-leaf Baccatrix so very prevalent last season feeding on the leaves of white and yellow birch that in the early fall every green appeared infested and had a brown and scorched appearance visible even at a great distance, the Apple-leaf Sucker, a small greenish-brown leaf-feeding caterpillar, the Lesser apple worm so common on all apple trees, the only treatment for none, throat and lung troubles that has ever been sold with the understanding that if it did not cure, it was to cost absolutely nothing.
Hyomel can be obtained at druggists everywhere and at Norway Drug Store, and guaranteed to cure catarrh, croup, sore throat, coughs and colds. A complete outfit $1.00, which is mighty cheap for a remedy that has cured more cases of catarrh than all the catarrh specialists on earth.
An outfit consists of an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomel, a supply of antiseptic gauze, a medicine dropper, and full instructions for use. The inhaler is made of pocket size, of hard rubber, and will last a lifetime. And best of all, that extra bottle of Hyomel, if needed, cost only 50 cents.

Success.

What is success in life? It is the result of doing well what God intended for you to do. Some people are continually trying to do what they were never made for.
God always fits His people for their proper work. He gives them a love for it, an interest in it, and I might say, a passion for it.
I claim that a man lowers his manhood when he takes up an occupation that is distasteful to him, for the sole purpose of worldly gain.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.
Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A good father who had only a limited country school education, used to ask his son to tell him about his studies, the difference between arithmetic and algebra and what he learned from chemistry. The son told me years afterwards that one of the delightful memories of his young life was in having his father question him.

Cause the children to feel you have faith in their ability. Such words help us older people, much more the boys and girls.

HIRAM.

Elias Gould, Tuesday afternoon, at the great age of 95 years, 11 months and 2 days. He had been quite well up to within a few days of his death.

Mr. Gould was born in Parsonsfield, May 30, 1814, and in 1841 he married Julia French of Porter and by her three children were born of whom two are living, Eunice and Melville. Julia died in 1847. Then in 1849 he married Ruth Clemons of Hiram and by her three children were born, Eli C., Julia and Samuel W. Of them only one is living, Samuel W. who is a prominent lawyer of Skowhegan.

In 1852 he was burned out in Porter, then he went to Bartlett, N. H., and from thence he moved to Hiram in 1857 and settled on the Capt. Evans farm where Llewellyn Wadsworth now lives. Then in 1864 he sold out and bought the Tim. Pierce place on the old Portland road where he has since lived. He was again burned out in 1895, losing everything he had. Afterwards, by the aid of his children, he built up a nice set of buildings just below where the old ones stood. Mr. Gould was a farmer and carpenter by trade and there are many buildings standing in town which will bring memories of him.

At the time of his last sickness he lived with his son, Melville, who administered to all his wants. The deceased was a very quiet man, a good neighbor and townsman, kind and affectionate in his home, and in politics was a staunch democrat.

Count Direct, a son of Direct Hal 2.04 1-4 and The Countess, by Mambrino King attracted the attention of our thoughtful breeders to him as a sire, through the performance of the three year old filly, Countess Chimes last season. She was the first of his get to be trained. She showed quarters in 33 seconds. There were days last fall when she could have shown a full mile in 2:20 or better. That she impressed others as being a fast trotting filly, will add that Walter Cox of Dover, N. H. bought her of Geo. Bonallie last fall. That fact alone is no small compliment to Count Direct.

Will stand at the stable of W. J. WHEELER at $25.00 to warrant. Send for full pedigree.

Halley's Comet.

As comets occupy the front rank amongst those astronomical objects in which, on occasions, the general public takes an interest, and as Halley's comet is the one which will be visible to the naked eye, perhaps just a few words about this heavenly visitor, and about comets in general, would not be out of place.

The comet in question receives its name from Edmund Halley, an English astronomer, who, upon the discovery of the law of gravitation by Sir Isaac Newton, evolved the theory that comets move in fixed orbits like planets, and he proved his theory by calculating the exact orbit of the comet which now bears his name, predicting its return about thirty days after the date of its return, which was in March, 1759. Its next appearance, November, 1835, was computed, under improved methods, by a French, (and also by a German) astronomer, and the comet arrived within three or four days after the time of its prediction. It is hoped, and it is also probable, that its next return—which will be about the middle of April, 1910, has been calculated to within 24 hours.

This comet has a period of about 75 years, but is subject to accelerations and retardations due to the attractions of the planets, which might make its period anywhere from 74 to 79 years, and to compute a close approximation of its return to perihelion becomes a problem of great intricacy and painstaking thoroughness.

Some have been prompted by their romantic fancy to call this celestial visitor the Star of Bethlehem, claiming that its first appearance presaged the birth of the Great Physician. Its first recorded appearance seems to have been about the year 12 B. C.

It is not so very many years ago that comets were looked upon with a pronounced terror, as portending national disaster; war, famine; the death of Kings or some other dire calamity.

This is made apparent by numerous ancient authors, and by none more forcibly than Shakespeare. For instance, in Julius Caesar we have a passage as follows:

"When beggars die there are no comets seen, The Heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes."

In Henry VI. in Hamlet, and in the Taming of the Shrew, we find similar references to the ill omen of comets. In Milton's Paradise Lost, a comet is spoken of as sending pestilence and war.

But modern science has dissipated all superstition with which, in earlier ages, the advent of a comet was regarded. They are no longer considered to be forerunners of impending calamity except by those who are still in bondage to superstition.

There is, however, a wide-spread apprehension—and it is not to be wondered at—as to what would happen in case a comet should strike our earth. But there is no reason to fear a collision between a comet and the globe on which we live.

While no one really knows what a comet really is, it is generally admitted by astronomers that the total amount of matter in a comet is exceedingly small, in consequence of which they must be decidedly impendable.

The spectroscopic observations to certainty the presence of hydrocarbon and other gases in comets, and it is possible that they consist of widely scattered particles of cometary matter, each surrounded by gas.

That the tail of a comet has no appreciable solidity is proven by the fact that the brilliancy of the faintest star is to no noticeable extent diminished when a comet passes over it. The star is seen quite as well through the comet as it would be if the comet were entirely out of the way. Therefore, whatever might be the effect on a comet if it were to strike the earth, the effect on the earth, were it struck by a comet, would probably not be serious.

The chances of a collision between the earth and Halley's comet during its coming visitation are probably less than one in many millions, a small chance indeed; but we are not living under conditions of chance such as the Hired Hand, but under conditions of design and immutable law which emanated from an All-powerful Creator.

What has happened to Halley's comet during the past seventy-five years, no one knows; its tail may have lessened in length, but it will be the same great comet, a brilliant sight in the heavens, with a tail probably forty million miles long.

Comets exhibit various unaccountable peculiarities, one of the most remarkable of which is the invariable direction of their tails away from the sun. A comet will rush head foremost toward the sun, but after it has turned that fiery goal, it proceeds tail first. This characteristic direction of a comet's tail is probably due to the repulsive force of the sun's heat or light.

Comets are often regarded as being no part of the solar system; but they are controlled by the same laws, and owe their existence and motions to the same forces.

In Central America many natives are gathering the seeds of this plant, Cedron Seed, a rare medicine that has valuable curative powers. But few drug stores carry this seed, owing to the high cost of the article.

This country is a large consumer of this costly seed because it enters into the famous catarrh remedy, Perna, sold the world over.

causes that the planets do. They have but little density, and their orbits are decidedly elliptical.

The periodic time of some of them is but a few years, while that of others covers centuries. They shine partially by their own, and partially by reflected light. They enter the solar system from every side, and at every angle with the plane of the ecliptic. Their brilliancy increases rapidly from the time they are first seen until they have turned the sun, and then their light diminishes as they pass into outer cold and darkness. Usually, a comet has a tail; but sometimes the tail is missing, and occasionally they have five or six tails.

The head of a typical comet contains as its brightest part what is called its nucleus, and in which the material of the comet seems to be much more dense than elsewhere. Surrounding the nucleus is a quantity of luminous material from twenty thousand to one million miles in diameter, called the coma; the nucleus and coma making up the head, from which the tail streams away, sometimes to a distance of two hundred million miles.

On June 30, 1801, the earth passed into and through the tail of a great comet of that year at about two-thirds of its distance from its nucleus, with no noticeable dynamic result, and nothing to indicate danger from asphyxiation.

Halley's comet has been recorded to have shown itself to the world no less than 25 times. It was this same misty visitor that was shown over Europe in April, 1066, and was considered the forerunner of the conquest of England by William of Normandy. To read the history in detail of this celebrated comet would require a great deal of time, but it would, nevertheless, be decidedly interesting to one who takes kindly to such literature.

In round numbers about five hundred comets visible to the naked eye have been recorded since the Christian era, and probably an equal number of telescopic comets have been observed since the invention of the telescope. Some authorities estimate the number belonging to our solar system by millions; consequently these heavenly rockets are not to be considered of rare occurrence. It may be taken as a fact, though of course not as a rule, that a bright and conspicuous comet comes about once in ten years, and one of remarkable brilliancy, or specially conspicuous in some respect, every thirty years.

Those who have calculated the orbit of Halley's comet for its coming return are more at fault than is likely, it will reach its perihelion, or nearest approach to the sun, on April 18, 15 hours G. M. T., at which time it will be about 65 million miles from the sun. About May 18th, it will pass between the sun and the earth, a distance of about 13 million miles separating them, and if its tail is more than 12 million miles long, and it almost certainly is, it will envelope the earth.

The speed with which we will pass through the tail of this comet is enormous. The comet will be moving toward the east with a velocity of thirty-two miles per second, and the earth will be moving toward the west with a velocity of eighteen and one-half miles per second, the sum of both motions amounting to over fifty miles per second.

Halley's comet will be visible to the naked eye—first before sunrise, and then after sunset—for a number of days before and a number of days after it has paid its dignified respects to the sun, at which time it will be in the zodiacal sign of Aquarius. This comet travels a distance of about seven billion miles during its period of about seventy-five years.

Cookery and Business.

A New York woman, who has mastered bookkeeping and stenography and is earning her own livelihood, writes to one of the newspapers to ascertain where she can learn to cook.

Evidently she is a sensible girl. If the right young man comes along, she will be ready to get into the business of running a lard. Merely because she now has to support herself by writing figures in a book and hammering the keys of a typewriter is no reason why she should not let herself manage a home of her own.

Perhaps her letter calls attention to a lack in the means provided for self supporting young women who seek improvement and recreation. The gymnasium and lecture hall are easily found in the large city. Apparently the evening cooking school is harder to discover.

Had the young girl who wrote to the newspaper wanted to study drawing or languages in her leisure hours, no letter would have been needed. But in all this published about the undertakings to help young women help themselves, nothing is said about cooking schools for bookkeepers and stenographers.

Yet a majority of the girls in the business offices will marry after some years spent in bookkeeping, dictation, or keeping books. What better thing could be done for them than to open the door of the evening school of domestic economy?

An increased knowledge of cooking might not be the least of the factors in decreasing the business of the divorce courts.

Previous to 1800, tallow dips and wax candles were the only sources of light; then came gas lighting and about 1850 the oil lamps came, becoming very widely used in the sixties. In 1870 the first gas light was used in a lighthouse and later they were used for street illumination. The incandescent lamp was discovered by Edison in 1880, and the latest development in electric lighting, the new metal filament lamps, is only about a year old.

Food Experts Point to France

Food authorities of America are creating a stir by holding up to this country the example furnished by France. These experts declare that France has struck the keynote in cutting down the high cost of living by consuming a greater amount of flour products and cutting down on other food products.

Recommendations upon the fact that the people of France constitute the healthiest and most prosperous nation in the world.

It is a well known fact that the lower a human being is in the scale of intelligence the less bread he eats, this point being evidenced by the fact that while our eating has, throughout the world's history, marked the advance of civilization, it is pointed out that no savage eats bread.

While living has practically trebled in cost in the last 10 years the price of flour has advanced only slightly. On the cheapness of flour the American food experts base their contention that greater consumption of flour will lower the high cost of living tremendously.

Besides being the cheapest food product on the market today, flour made into bread contains 60 per cent more nutriment than meat. Flour is marketed at the nearest cost of raw material of any known food product, the miller's profit seldom exceeding two per cent of the cost of the raw material and manufacture.

In support of their arguments of a greater consumption of flour by American families, food experts declare that France consumes twice the amount of wheat flour per capita that America does. Also it is pointed out that bread and milk and milk toast are most nearly the ideal of a perfect diet for human beings and will sustain the body in perfect physical condition longer than any other single diet.

The fact that the cheapness of flour will cause a reduction in the high cost of living is also pointed out in a strong vein by President John W. Burk, of the Ansted & Burk Company, of Springfield, Ohio, who produce the famous William Tell Flour, the wholesomeness and purity of which are insured to the American housewife by a special guarantee.

Mr. Burk declares that already his company is noticing the tendency among consumers of the William Tell Flour to use more wheat flour and eat less meat. While this in a large measure is due to the perfect satisfaction which this flour gives for the baking of bread, biscuit, cake and pastry, Mr. Burk believes that the next year will see a large increase in the consumption of flour in this country.

He declares that there is not, nor never can be a flour trust, and he bases his statement upon the table of prices shown, and states that this comparison is greater than shown, as all the prices, except flour, in the table, are 50 to 100 per cent greater than indicated. Following is the table of prices he presents:

Eggs per doz. 24c
Beef per lb. 12c
Mutton per lb. 15c
Milk per qt. 12c
Fork per lb. 12c
Cheese per lb. 15c
Butter per lb. 15c
Rice per lb. 8c
Potatoes per bu. 60c
Beans per lb. 8c
Flour per lb. 30c

The Boston Sunday Journal Makes an Innovation.

On last Sunday, May 8, The Boston Sunday Journal made a decided innovation in the field of Sunday Newspaperdom. The issue of that date was a straight newspaper, giving all the news, but not sending out any comics or any of the so-called freak or special features common to the conventional Sunday paper. The Price of The Boston Sunday Journal, moreover, is a novelty. It sells for one cent, the same as every other day.

To the man who wishes to get the news of Saturday afternoon and evening, often the most eventful part of the week, The Boston Journal will come as a welcome relief from the six-day-page bulky paper he is forced to buy now.

The follower of athletic sports, the financial world, the woman of the home, all receive attention, and find the events that interest them carefully covered.

The Boston Sunday Journal comes to fill a long felt need. It marks a return to simpler conditions and already its coming has met with approval from readers in all walks of life.

Purest Flour

The wheat is stored in hermetically sealed tanks at the big mills of Ansted & Burk Co.

Before grinding, it is cleaned six times.

Halley's Comet.

As comets occupy the front rank amongst those astronomical objects in which, on occasions, the general public takes an interest, and as Halley's comet will be visible to the naked eye, perhaps just a few words about this heavenly visitor, and about comets in general, would not be out of place.

The comet in question receives its name from Edmund Halley, an English astronomer, who, upon the discovery of the law of gravitation by Sir Isaac Newton, evolved the theory that comets move in fixed orbits like planets, and he proved his theory by calculating the exact orbit of the comet which now bears his name, predicting its return about thirty days the correct date of its return, which was in March, 1759. Its next appearance, November, 1835, was computed, under improved methods, by a French, and a German astronomer, and the comet arrived within three or four days after the time of its prediction. It is hoped, and it is also probable, that its next return—which will be about the middle of April, 1910—has been calculated to within 24 hours.

This comet has a period of about 75 years, but is subject to accelerations and retardations due to the attractions of the planets, which might make its period anywhere from 74 to 79 years, and to compute a close approximation of its return to perihelion becomes a problem of great intricacy and painstaking thoroughness.

Some have been prompted by their romantic fancy to call this celestial visitor the Star of Bethlehem, claiming its first appearance presaged the birth of the Great Physician. Its first recorded appearance seems to have been about the year 12 B. C.

It is not so very many years ago that comets were looked upon with a mixture of terror, as portending national disaster; war, famine; the death of Kings or some other dire calamity.

This is made apparent by numberless ancient authors, and by none more forcibly than Shakespeare. For instance, in Julius Caesar we have a passage as follows:

"When beggars die there are no comets seen, The heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes."

In Henry VI. in Hamlet, and in the Taming of the Shrew, we find similar references to the ill omen of comets. In Milton's Paradise Lost, a comet is spoken of as sending pestilence and war. But modern science has dispelled all superstition with which, in earlier ages, the advent of a comet was regarded. They are no longer considered to be forerunners of impending calamity except by those who are still in bondage to superstition.

There is, however, a wide-spread apprehension—and it is not to be wondered at—as to what would happen in case a comet should strike our earth. But there is no reason to fear a collision between a comet and the globe on which we live. While no one really knows what a comet really is, it is generally admitted by astronomers that the total amount of matter in a comet is exceedingly small, in consequence of which they must be decidedly inconsiderable.

The fact that the speed of a comet is so appreciable is proved by the fact that the brilliancy of the faintest star is to no noticeable extent diminished when a comet passes over it. The star is seen quite as well through the tail of the comet as if the comet were entirely out of the way. Therefore, whatever might be the effect on a comet if it were to strike the earth, the effect on the earth, were it struck by a comet, would probably not be serious.

The chances of a collision between the earth and Halley's comet during its coming visitation are probably less than one in many millions, a small chance indeed; but we are not living under conditions of chance such as those of the past, but under conditions of design and immutable law which emanated from an All-powerful Creator.

Flour is marketed at the nearest cost of raw material of any known food product, the miller's profit seldom exceeding two per cent of the cost of the raw material and manufacture.

In support of their arguments of a greater consumption of flour by American families, food experts declare that France consumes twice the amount of wheat flour per capita that America does. Also it is pointed out that bread and milk and milk toast are most nearly the ideal of a perfect diet for human beings and will sustain the body in perfect physical condition longer than any other single diet.

The fact that the cheapness of flour will cause a reduction in the high cost of living is a strong vein in President John W. Burck, of the Ansted & Burck Company, of Springfield, Ohio, who produces the famous William Tell Flour, the wholesomeness and purity of which are insured to the American housewife by a special guarantee.

Mr. Burck declares that already his company is noticing the tendency among consumers of the William Tell Flour to use more wheat flour and eat less meat. While this in a large measure is due to the perfect satisfaction which this flour gives for the baking of bread, biscuit, cake and pastry, Mr. Burck believes that the next year will see a large increase in the consumption of flour in this country.

He declares that there is not, nor never can be a flour trust, and he bases his statement upon the table of prices below, and states that this comparison is greater than shown, as all the prices except flour, in the table, are 50 to 100 per cent greater than indicated. Following is the table of prices he presents:

Eggs per doz.	24c
Beef per lb.	20c
Mutton per lb.	18c
Pork per lb.	16c
Milk per lb.	12c
Cheese per lb.	15c
Butter per lb.	18c
Rice per lb.	8c
Potatoes per bu.	60c
Beans per bu.	50c
Flour per lb.	30c

The Boston Sunday Journal Makes an Innovation.

On last Sunday, May 8, The Boston Sunday Journal made a decided innovation in the field of Sunday Newspaper. The issue of that date was a straight newspaper, giving all the news, but not sending out any comics or any of the so-called freak or special features common to the conventional Sunday paper. The Price of The Boston Sunday Journal, moreover, is a novelty. It sells for one cent, the same as every other day.

To the man who wishes to get the news of Saturday afternoon and evening, often the most eventful part of the week, The Boston Journal will come as a welcome relief from the sixty-page bulky papers he is forced to buy now. The follower of athletic sports, the financial world, the woman of the home, all receive attention, and find the events that interest them carefully covered.

The Boston Sunday Journal comes to fill a long felt need. It marks a return to simpler conditions and already its coming has met with approval from readers in all walks of life.

Purest Flour

"Of the various qualities of flour obtained from the same wheat, the lower grades are those most contaminated with germs, dirt, and objectionable bacteria; the freedom of flour from these, increases with its purity."

PROP. WM. JAGO, the well-known English chemist.

The purity of William Tell flour is due to the costly equipment and exceptional care to keep the grain and flour clean.

The wheat is stored in hermetically sealed tanks at the big mills of Ansted & Burck Co.

Before grinding, it is cleaned six times.

Neither grain nor flour ever touches anything but the bright, clean surfaces of dust-proof machinery. Even the flour bags are sewed up by machinery.

William Tell comes to you from the mills with all the brilliant bloom that only Ohio wheat can make. Ask your dealer, and insist on having—

William Tell

A Compound Fracture.

The parents of Dr. Harry Watson of Haverhill, Mass., received intelligence last week that the doctor had met with a serious accident by being struck from his sulky while driving one of his own horses at the spring races in Manchester, N. H. A compound fracture of the left forearm was the result of the accident. Dr. Watson has not been disabled from attending to his large veterinary practice in Haverhill.

P. Harold Kimball completed his circuit as census enumerator May 10.
Our early spring has been so cool of late that planting time and spring work in general will be about as late as in average years.

Arbor Day is being observed this week by the planting of maple trees on the grounds of the Grange hall. Brother Granville Fernald is supervising the tree-planting and is assisted by a number of helpful school-boys.

Blanche Farwell was engaged to teach the summer term of school in Hastings. Soon after her arrival at the destination she had the misfortune to have her ankle badly sprained and was compelled to return home, and it is feared she may not be able to resume her engagement.

Frank Noble has about 500 chickens of various ages all in fine growing condition. He reports bad luck in hatching this year as the incubator gave him only about 100 chicks for every three eggs. He has 300 laying hens of 350 wintered, and has had a large yield of eggs all winter.

Wm. T. Guphill of Topsham and Grant Abbott of Norway were guests of the family of Fred Muller on Saturday and Sunday last and were both visitors at Bear Mountain Grange on Saturday evening. Mr. Guphill is a brother of Mrs. Muller and is noted as a skilled and successful agriculturist.

Bear Mountain Grange scored another notch in its present year's record last Saturday evening, admitting seven new candidates to the fellowship of the order. P. H. and the mysteries of the right and second degrees. These with eight others who came in about three months ago, number fifteen young people who have joined the Grange this year. And yet there is room.

Marion Noble, who had recently a quite lengthy case of typhoid fever, failed to rally toward a complete recovery, when it was discovered that she had a case of well developed appendicitis. An operation for that disease was performed on May 7th by Dr. Bradford of Portland and Miss Noble is now on the way to comfortable health.

The death of Mrs. Maria Wells York, widow of the late York, occurred May 3d at Bridgton at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Martha Brown. Mrs. York was in the 93rd year of her age, a native of Norway, but most of her married life a resident of South Waterford. A religious service was held at Bridgton on May 7th by Rev. Mr. Leavitt, pastor of the M. E. church, at which the burial was on the same day at Elmaville cemetery, South Waterford.

W. K. Hamlin has recently added several costly and very valuable improved machines and apparatus to the equipment of the creamery. Last year he made radical changes by reconstructing nearly the whole building, replacing the framed walls with brick and stone, and the wooden floors by concrete and cement. The whole interior on the first floor is newly finished in handsome style and is reported ceiling and all. The large new boiler and machinery introduced last year must be mentioned. This important extension of the butter-making facilities at this creamery is a necessity created by the increased product of cream in consequence of the new testing organization in Waterford and Norway.

The International Sunday school lesson last Sunday was on Temperance. The Golden text was: At last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder. Prov. 23:32. The Scripture lesson was from Matthew 23:29-32 verses. The words, sorrows, contentions and all the troubles of the drunkard were set forth; also embracing the injurious effects of the cigarette habit. Our superintendent omitted all class recitations and gave special attention to the illustration of the lesson by the use of an illustrative map of the United States, showing the present status of each state with reference to the prevalence of prohibition or license.

Also introducing a chart, showing to what extent the users of cigarettes are rejected as laborers in almost all the great leading industries of our country by the U. S. Army and Navy, the great railroad and steamship companies and the largest mercantile establishments. Why? Because those authorities must have men and boys with clear brains and unclouded intellects for transacting their business.

The newly installed Camp Chaplin, Sons of Veterans meets the first and third Monday nights in Sons of Temperance hall.
An exciting base ball game between the boys of the Welchville school and those of School No. 6 took place at Welchville, Saturday afternoon. Owing to lack of good material each school put a pony team of six players in the field, the line-ups being as follows:

Welchville
Martin 1
Brett 2
Baker 3
Bryant 4
Hurst 5
Welchville 1 2 0 0 1 0 2 3
No. 6 1 1 1 1 0 0 0 0
Struck out by Martin 5, by Thomas 14, Umpire Leslie Morse of Lynn, Mass.

The noticeable feature of the game was the absence of kicking or disputes after the players took the field. The Welchville boys proved the heaviest batsmen, but were unable to hit Thomas very often, nearly every one of their scores being the result of chance hits and errors on the part of No. 6's basemen. On the other hand No. 6 found Martin nearly every time, but had the misfortune to hit to the pitcher or shortstop frequently. Welchville was minus one of its snappiest players, while No. 6's first baseman was lame as result of a recent accident. A second game is called for next Saturday at East Oxford and both teams are hoping to put up a faster game.

T. J. Audkins, V. S., has moved to Mechanic Falls, and is to sell his farm in East Oxford.
Leslie Morse of Lynn, Mass., is visiting his brother's family at "Willow Brook Farm."

Nearly all the farmers of this locality, have sowed for sweet corn with the Fernald, True, Keen Co., and the plows are busy these days.
The John Holmes farm, known as "Willow Brook" has been leased by its owner, A. H. Morse of Cincinnati, to F. B. Morse of Lynn, Mass., for a term of five years. Mr. Morse brings with him a family of seven.

Among the smart children of East Oxford is Ida Greely. This little girl is not yet ten, but leads the 6th grade with an average of 97 per cent which she has held for two months. She lives nearly two miles from the school, but has been neither tardy nor absent during the time.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.
Alarm from Box 35.
The fire alarm from Box 35 was rung in Tuesday noon for fire in the saw state of H. F. & E. E. Andrews on Main street.
The fire broke out in the office which is at the left of the double door. It is not known how it started as no one was in the room at the time but it is thought from indications that it was started from a pipe in a coat which was hanging on a harness hook. The prompt work of those in the vicinity extinguished the fire so that the fire company did not have to put the streams on. The damage was slight. Had the fire broken through the door above where the hay is it would have done a lot of damage.
It was only a year ago last August that the Andrews family lost their buildings by fire for the second time, the first being in the big fire of 16 years ago.

The cast will be the same as when it was first played with the exception of the part of Deacon Potter, which will be filled by Harold Anderson.
The long heralded May 15th when we were "to pass through the comet's tail" has come and gone. Curiosity got the better of us and we set the alarm at 11.30 as a good time to see it. The moon was shining brightly and what stars that could be seen because of the moon rays looked as usual under such conditions, but there was no sign of comet's tail or anything unusual. Did anyone see the tail when we passed through?
